

Product Installation and Activation

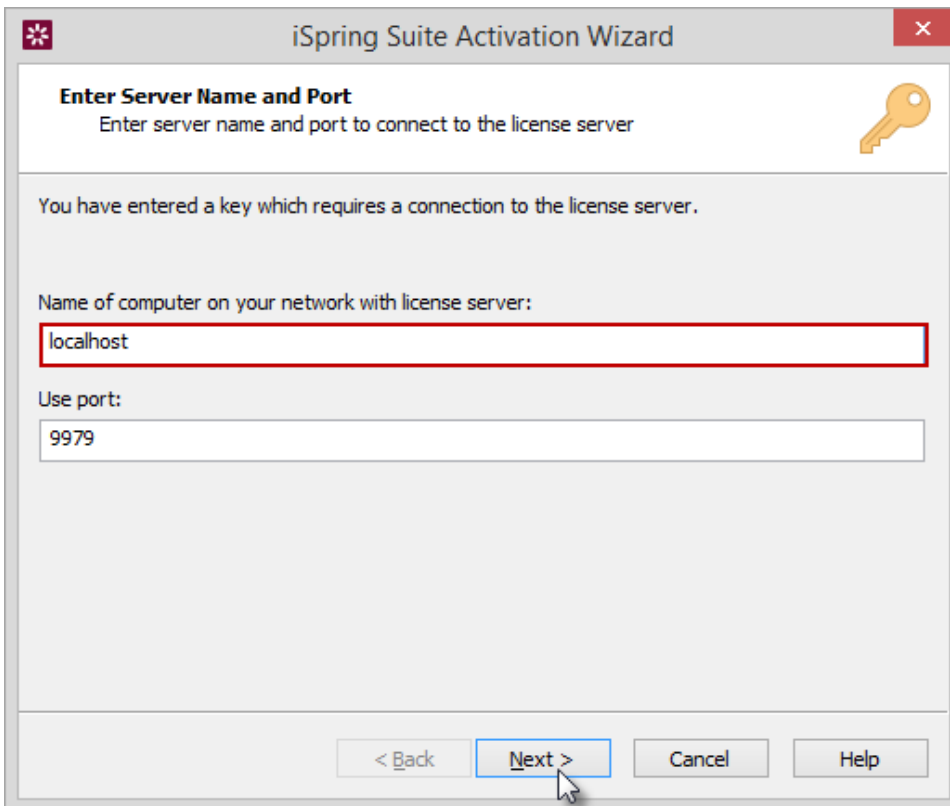

1. Install the new product without uninstalling the old one. You can use this video instruction to install iSpring Suite.
2. When the installation is complete, open iSpring Suite and click Activate on the toolbar.

3. Insert the concurrent license key and click Next. Use the same key that you specified for the License Server activation.

4. Specify the computer name where the License Server is installed. If both client and server parts are installed on one and the same computer, then type in 'localhost'.

The dialog box is titled "iSpring Suite Activation Wizard" and has a close button (X) in the top right corner. It features a key icon in the top right. The main heading is "Enter Server Name and Port" with the instruction "Enter server name and port to connect to the license server". Below this, a message states: "You have entered a key which requires a connection to the license server." The form contains two input fields: "Name of computer on your network with license server:" with the value "localhost", and "Use port:" with the value "9979". At the bottom, there are four buttons: "< Back", "Next >", "Cancel", and "Help". A mouse cursor is pointing at the "Next >" button.

Enter Server Name and Port
Enter server name and port to connect to the license server

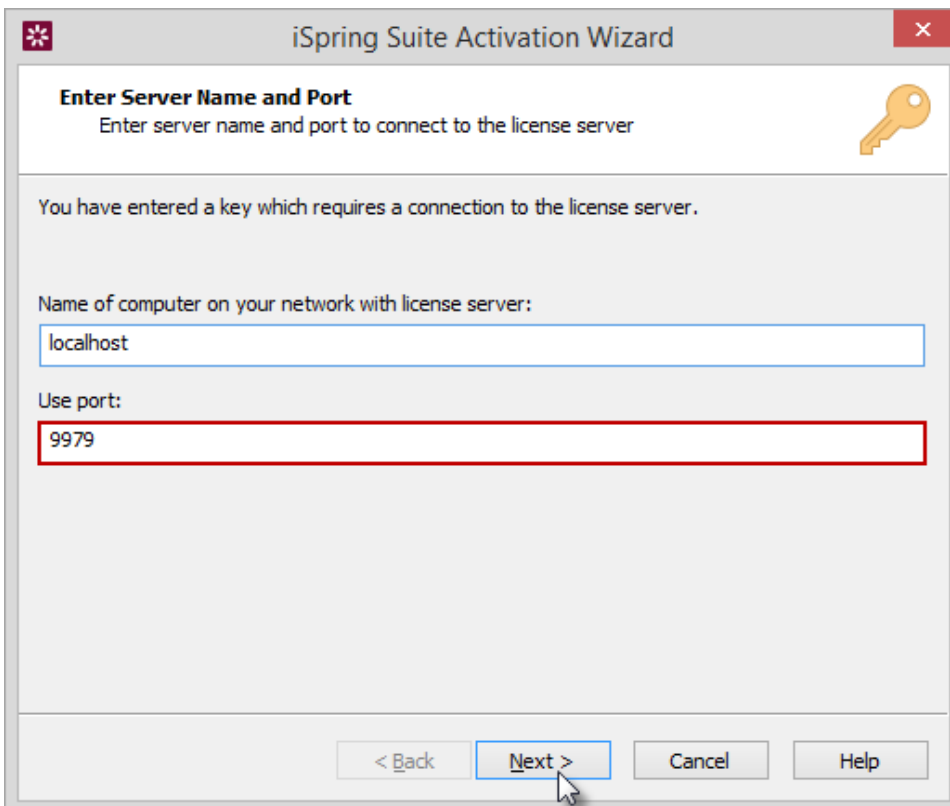

You have entered a key which requires a connection to the license server.

Name of computer on your network with license server:
localhost

Use port:
9979

< Back Next > Cancel Help

5. In the 'Use port' field, specify the same port that you indicated in the Server License Management Console. The default value is 9979. Click Next.

This dialog box is identical to the one above, but with a red border around the "Use port:" input field containing the value "9979". The mouse cursor is still pointing at the "Next >" button.

Enter Server Name and Port
Enter server name and port to connect to the license server

You have entered a key which requires a connection to the license server.

Name of computer on your network with license server:
localhost

Use port:
9979

< Back Next > Cancel Help

Your product is now activated. You can start using the iSpring product if there are any available connections (floating licenses) on the server.